5. Intelligence Aspects of Proposed Exchanges of Technical

a. The Chairman stated that he had received a request from Mr. Hoover, Undersecretary of State, for the views of the IAC on intelligence aspects of a proposed exchange of highway and transportation delegations with the USSR. Mr. Armstrong then announced that he had just been informed that the State Department was notifying the Russian Embassy that arrangements could not be completed to permit the entry of the Soviet delegation at this time.

b. The Chairman requested the members' views on the general subject of exchanging technical delegations with the USSR, inasmuch as the NSC will consider the question of the net gains to the US from such exchanges. The Army and Navy members said that, provided a net gain accrued to the US and proper precautions were taken regarding US internal security, they were in favor of such exchanges. Mr. Belmont stated that the FBI had in the past opposed Soviet visits on grounds of US internal security. The question of gain for the US from such exchanges must therefore include a careful consideration of attendant internal security problems. It was noted that the internal security problem would probably be referred by the NSC to the IIC. The Joint Staff member noted that studies made by the JIG had shown that whereas Soviet delegations in the past had access to many people and installations in the US, our delegations have been severely restricted in their visits to the USSR. Mr. Armstrong said that there was no unanimity of opinion in the State Department on this question. He said that an IAC study of the problem from the intelligence standpoint would be useful to the NSC Planning Board, which would also receive reports from other agencies concerning other aspects of the proposed exchanges. General Samford stated that it should be borne in mind that adverse US action might bring reprisals which would further restrict US representatives in the Soviet Union.

c. The Chairman then reported that the Department of Commerce was doubtful of the possibility of a net gain for the US from the proposed exchanges. In his view, provided the problem of US internal security was satisfactorily met, there were important gains for US intelligence to be derived from such visits to the USSR.

d. The Chairman then suggested, and the members agreed, that an ad hoc committee be appointed to study the intelligence aspects of the problem. He requested the members to inform the Secretary of the personnel they would designate to the committee.
